UP FOR DISCUSSION: SCHOOL DAY TIMINGS

Why not discuss what you think about this question at home? Would you be in favour of a later lesson start?

THIS WEEK'S BIG READ: CIRCADIAN RHYTHMS

A circadian rhythm is a natural process that all living things go through, including humans! It is a cycle that repeats every 24 hours, helping living things to adapt, survive, and thrive.

Circadian rhythms help to control our sleep cycle by making sure we are awake during daylight and asleep during nighttime. Things like jet lag, night shifts, and sleep problems such as insomnia can disrupt our circadian rhythms, so it is important to keep a regular sleep routine if we can.

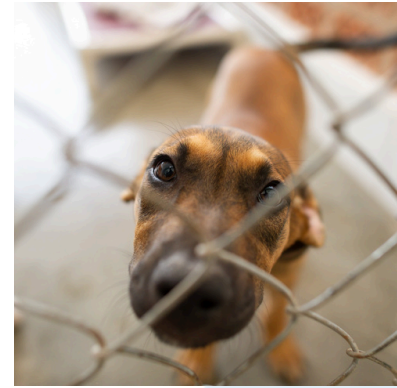

GUIDED READING CHALLENGE

- Find and copy an adjective which describes a circadian rhythm.
- How long does a circadian rhythm cycle last for?
- Name one thing that a circadian rhythm helps living things to do.
- What do circadian rhythms control?
- Why is it important to keep a regular sleep routine?

PETS ARE FOR LIFE...

There's been a huge increase in animal neglect and abandonment in England and Wales and the RSPCA's rescue centres are "absolutely full". The charity blames lockdown, the cost of living crisis and winter for rising animal abandonment and neglect.

NO STONE LEFT UNTURNED

Archaeologists are recovering Stone Age artefacts from the bottom of the North Sea. Using special equipment, scientists have just brought 100 flint artefacts made by Stone Age humans to the surface. The sites are 12-15 miles off the Norfolk coast.

A FAKE DISPLAY

Thousands of people gathered in the centre of Birmingham on New Year's Eve to watch a fireworks display that they had heard about on social media. Police warned that no display was taking place, but lots of people gathered at midnight.

THEATRES UNDER PRESSURE

Hundreds of theatres face closure and more than 500 museums have shut in recent years. There are currently around 1,110 theatres across the UK. A report suggested that one in five venues needs at least £5m over the next 10 years to stay open.
